

Popup Blockers and VKViewer / webVIEW

When you print a report from VKViewer/webVIEW, it pops up in a new window. Many browsers' either have a built-in popup blocker OR are using a 3rd party tool-bar (like Google's or Yahoo's) that will block popups. Generally, a popup is used by a site to promote a product or advertise and thus, is rightly blocked. We generate our reports in a popup and it's most likely you'd want to see it. Every popup blocker can be turned off OR told to allow popups from a specific site. We strongly suggest you do the latter, allow popups from the site where you're viewing the repair data.

The below is how it's done in IE on XP SP2. It will be similar on all systems.

The screenshot shows a Microsoft Internet Explorer browser window titled "webVIEW Home - Microsoft Internet Explorer". The address bar displays "http:// /webview/webview.dll/EXEC/2/0mso52f0oxzao019683p80mcv4u8". A yellow warning bar at the top of the page content reads: "Pop-up blocked. To see this pop-up or additional options click here...". A red arrow points from this message to a blocked popup window. The popup window has a menu bar with "File View Commands Help" and a logo for "DESSELLE-MAGGARD DMC CORPORATION". The main content of the popup features the "VK-Viewer" logo and a "Valve-Keep II" logo. Below the logos is a menu with "Exit", "Query", "Columns", "Find", "Data Sheet", "Repair Details", "Images", "Generic", "Reports", "Parts", "Actions", "Welds", and "Positioner". The "Data Sheet" menu item is highlighted. Below the menu are navigation buttons (Page Up, Page Dn) and a "Show:" dropdown menu set to "Most Recent Only". The "Owner:" and "Plant:" fields are both set to "(all)". A table with 5 columns is displayed: "Valve Tag #", "New Serial #", "Manufacturer", "Model Number", and "D". The first row is highlighted in yellow and contains the following data: "1)", "M02-VQL028-1", "Durco", and "20".
